

have count upon the scrupulousness of the 49th Congress, and pressed the power of the Holy See upon the boys of that year to Mexico was approaching. I am coming to an epoch of transition to fix an anchor for the future. My return is not compromising the Freedom of the press. I have been defending in that North American States, issuing a formidable struggle, have religion, and have solemnly affirmed that I will not sacrifice a page of her history, of the propriety of the great and for the maintenance of

[illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible]

Hon. J. G. Sinclair, of nor, and Col. G. H. Price, and Commissioner. The endorse President Johnson
have the Southern States
press, and discouragement
the Constitution.

SALT LAKE, Feb. 4.
Idaho has unanimously
adoption policy of President
tion. Gov. Lyon pledg and charge the Legislature
has charter to a Branch Pa
Lark, Lake to the Columbia Snake River.

100

GEN. SHERMAN'S REPORT.

Washington, Friday, Feb. 2.
Dear Sir:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 28th inst., relative to the resolution of the Senate, of ultimo, requesting the President, if notified with the public interest, to communicate to the Senate a copy of the late report of General Sherman upon the credentials of his Department, in which he may make a note of inspection. I transmit a copy of the report, dated at Fort Mifflin, Pa., 23d, 1865, addressed to the head of the army by Major-General Sherman, transmitting the report of the Adjutant-General.

Very respectfully,
ANDREW JOHNSON.

His Excellency,
S. L. MASON, Secy. of the MISSISSIPPI.
St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 23, 1865.

J. A. Rameau, Chief of Staff, Washington, D. C.

P. S. I have just returned from a partial inspection of the Department of Arkansas, and it is my purpose to have extended my visit up to the mouth of the Mississippi.

limited it to Little Rock. The railroad traveled between substantially as the same way—by the Mississippi river, Davenport, Iowa, and then by the Gulf and North American rivers to Memphis, and thence forty-eight miles to Little Rock. The Arkansas is at all times capable to be relied on. White river, which flows into the Mississippi, retains at all seasons a water of three and a half feet as far as the city of Little Rock, and the Arkansas is in good enough condition for all purposes, and has been restored to the use of the citizens of Little Rock, to the satisfaction of General Sherman and Chief Quartermaster, Colonel J. B. McCall, and the military government, as well as the civil government of the State of Arkansas, if the railroad failed to Memphis. I saw Mr. R. C. McCall, Chief Quartermaster of the army, who seemed very anxious to finish what the company had lost so much

The Government he feared he undertake it. The road was once the St. Francis river, with a line completed over this stream, and at the Federal army's approach, the road had a thousand tons of railroad iron ready to be applied to the unfinished between Duval's Bluff and Bluff, and the Federal army's approach was taken by it and carried on by New York, and used in repairs on the Ohio river. It is our military from Columbia to Corinth, and the bridge over the St. Francis was burned General Hindman. Mr. Denkleigh is a coal-burner, and the road is a line to Duval's Bluff, and to cut in along the line the necessary of ties, in the way of the on credit, of the necessary of iron, and to construct a coal-burner, and the road is a line to Duval's Bluff, and to cut in along the line the necessary of ties, in the way of the on credit, of the necessary regiments, at Pine Bluff, one, and the other was to be sent to apply to two or more of these regiments, and to get in and get out. And Mr. McRae agreed to pay for the land belonging to the regiment to the road. General Reynolds, being the department, and Sprague, being the federal government, were in favor of this plan, and I think we are interested in this road to encourage the negroes, and to get the negroes proposed to muster out the colored troops, that the War Department will sanction. And I think the General is going to order the execution of the work to be done in winter and spring months. And all the troops in Arkansas in good and well equipped and are admirably adapted to his command. General Reynolds also has the respect of the civil and military authorities, and is a good and profitable and lucrative employ-the civil authorities. I must say that the officer, who questioned or doubted freedom was well assured in Arlington, Ohio, that the man in question could acquire title to real estate and of property, and that the courts, federal and state, would sustain him. There was a universal lack of confidence in the present state of affairs, and the part of the speaker who thought the present prescribed for them was too stringent.

A convention of them, convened in how was it, was held in the city where, and a committee from General Reynolds and myself, invited. We were present, and the proceedings were in progress during the day. On our entrance to the hall the addressed me, and I, in turn, as possible, and asked our advice. I gave them the best advice I could.

On these matters, since the conclusion of the war, have progressed and were still progressing as the result of the action of any action on their part would be rather the act of Arkansas; but that careful consideration of facts from their individual conduct, and the influence of General Rounselle to President and to the National Congress, would receive every consideration. At the same time I called their attention to the fact that they were not to interfere in their country, and how much better for them to be satisfied with their place to each to his own affairs rather than to mix themselves with the general matters of Arkansas. After leaving Little Rock, I learned that the convention was adjourned, and that all things will remain as quiet as hitherto, so far as my observation goes in regard to the feelings of the masses of people, except on the part of a few who are looking to future compensation.

I found every where in the South
number of our officers and soldiers looking for the direct employment; and I finding the next year all the land which will be under cultivation, a large part of the direct employment. I find that what all branches of business in Arizona will be stimulated by the presence of a army which has not heretofore existed
here. Single individuals now travel from one point of the State to another, and receive no military protection
from any one, and the same is true
of the merchant, your obedient servant,
W. T. SHERMAN,
Major-General Commanding.

[illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible]

WILSON & PETER.
 LOT OF WINE BOTTLES 6/3 TO GAL-
 best quality, for sale very low.

CHICAGO, Feb. 7—P. M.

No. 2. Corn & Oil. Oats dull. At 10 a. m. 1897
No. 1. quiet. Mess pork $25 1/2. Bulk meats
Dress 100; roan sides, low, 12 1/2; sweet-breads firm at $20 1/2. Green meats quiet.
No. 2. Lard firm at 18 1/2. Hops moderate at $2 1/2. Dressed hogs transaction 11 1/2.
No. 3. 15,000 bushels flour, 18,000 bushels of wheat,
10 of corn, 14,500 bushels of oats, 4,000 hogs,
and 100 head of cattle.
No. 4. 15,000 bushels flour, 2,400 bushels of wheat,
5 of corn.

of her late husband, R. H. Kue, of that city, in the thirty-third year of her age.

Professing to be a pious and exemplary Christian, she was a member of the Baptist church, and was a devoted adherent of the tenets of that denomination. She was a mother of five children, one grand-child, and a son-in-law, and was dearly loved by all those who knew her, especially by her husband and a helping sister to her deceased husband, who was a member of the same church.

She resided in the city of St. Louis, where she was employed as a laundress, and was a very active and public member of her church, and was a very impressive General session.

Black Wine-Bottles.
A LOT OF WINE-BOTTLES, 64 TO GALLONS, for sale very low.
Best quality for sale very low.
WILSON & PETER.

MARRIED,

OBITUARY.
Lincolnton, suddenly, by a mortal attack of the contracting fever, on January 5, 1895, of S. Baser, Esq., of that city, in the thirty-ninth year of her age.
She was sincerely deplored by the bereaved husband, one grand-child, and a son-in-law, and, deeply regretted by her numerous friends, all those who knew her, especially by all those who knew her, she was a kind and ready, to whom she was a help and a comfort, in the hours of sorrow and distress. The deceased was well known in this place by her large connections, and her friends, Dr. Elbert, who was a very active and pleasant member of all the denominations, and who delivered a very impressive funeral oration.

best quality, for sale
WILSON & PETER.

id and a helping sister in the home
and distress. The deceased was following out in place by a large concourse

Black Wine-Bottles.
A LOT OF WINE BOTTLES 6'S TO GAL-
best quality, for sale very low.
WILSON & PETER.

WILSON & PETER.

_____

